Tugs Battle To Keep One Vessel Afloat

Norwegian, Greek Ships Crash In Fog At Mouth Of Bay

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—A Norwegian passenger-cargo ship and a Greek freighter collided in dense fog at the mouth of Chesapeake Bay Sunday. Two persons died and three were injured in the collision.

All the casualties were aboard the Norwegian vessel, the Tarantel, which was slashed open from water line to deck when struck amidships by the bow of the Greek ship, Hellenic Splendor.

Late Sunday, tugs fought to save the Tarantel from sinking but their effort temporarily was halted when the stricken vessel ran lightly aground four miles east of Cape Henry.

Man, Woman Killed

A Coast Guard spokesman said the passenger-cargo ship went aground when one of the tugs towing her toward the Newport News shipyard experienced engine failure. Other salvage vessels immediately began efforts to pull the Tarantel free and resume the tow.

The two killed aboard the Tarantel were passengers—a man and a woman not otherwise identified. Slightly injured, brought to a local hospital and released were a woman and a man identified as the wife and husband of the two dead passengers.

Of the 54 aboard the Norwegian ship, 7 were passengers and 47 were crewmen, the Coast Guard said. Twenty-five, including all 5 surviving passengers, were removed by a Coast Guard cutter and brought ashore.

Greek Ship's Bow Crumpled

A 26th person from the Tarantel, August Hjorby, 23, a Dane and second officer aboard the ship, was flown ashore earlier by helicopter to the U.S. Public Health Service Hospital for treatment. Hjorby suffered a broken nose and a cut forehead.

There were no injuries on the Hellenic Splendor, whose bow was bashed in by the collision.

The Hellenic Splendor was outbound from Chesapeake Bay, en route from Baltimore to Philadelphia, and the Tarantel was inbound for Newport News from New York when they came together in a grinding crash at 6:20 a.m. in fog that shrouded the mouth of the bay.

The Hellenic Splendor proceeded toward Philadelphia, under her own power, apparently in no danger. It was not known how many were aboard the freighter.

A 20-foot hole was ripped into the starboard side of the Tarantel, where the prow of the Hellenic Splendor knifed into her.

22 Chinese Refugees Die As Junk Capsizes

HONG KONG (AP)—Twenty-two persons fleeing Communist China died Saturday when their junk capsized about 60 miles east of Hong Kong. A single survivor rescued by the Swedish ship Nagasaki reached Hong Kong Sunday and told the story.

Chu Bun-lau, the survivor, said he was from a peoples commune near Swatow and fled with 22 others because of hardship and hunger.

A British navy destroyer and 10 helicopters went to the area where the junk had capsized but returned without seeing signs of other survivors.

Nuns Will "Adopt" 100 Cuban Children

BOSTON (AP)—One hundred refugee children from Cuba will be "adopted" by Roman Catholic nuns in Massachusetts, Richard Cardinal Cushing said Sunday.

Cardinal Cushing, Catholic archbishop of Boston, said the children will be brought here from Miami, Fla., by July 4.

Soviet Spaceman Arrives

Smiling Cosmonaut

Gherman A. Titov, Soviet cosmonaut who circled the world 17 times, smiles broadly and waves to welcome as he and his wife, Tamara, leave New York's Idlewild Airport. Titov flew from Moscow yesterday on a Russian turboprop airliner to a big welcome at the airport. He and his wife will go to Washington where Titov will attend the International Space Conference on Thursday.

Titov Anxious To Swap Notes With Col. Glenn

NEW YORK (UPI)—Soviet cosmonaut Gherman Titov arrived here by plane Sunday for an 8-day visit to the United States during which he will attend a Washington space symposium and swap notes on space travel with U.S. astronaut John Glenn.

Titov, 27, was accompanied by his attractive brunette wife, Tamara, 24, and a party of Russian scientists. It is Titov's first visit to the United States.

The Russian spaceman has been invited to visit Cape Canaveral during his unofficial stay to view U.S. preparations for the next manned earth orbital flight, but there was no immediate indication whether he would accept the invitation.

During his stay, the cosmonaut, who orbited the earth 17 times last August, will tour New York City for two days, taking in the view from the top of the Empire State Building and making a visit to the United Nations at the invitation of Acting Secretary General Thant.

The Russian spaceman, who flew to the United States in a special Soviet Ilyushin 18 flight, will go to Washington Tuesday for the international space symposium.

He told newsmen before leaving Prestwick he was anxious to meet with Glenn at the symposium because: "You can't see everything, even in a 24 hour flight. That is why I am anxious to compare notes with Colonel Glenn."

The cosmonaut, relaxed and speaking freely with newsmen through an interpreter, referred to Glenn's triple orbit of the earth last Feb. 20.

"I am glad that American technology has advanced," he said, "with the final proof being the flight of Glenn."

In a reference to the race between the United States and Russia to put a man on the moon, Titov said he would "like to go into space again, either to the moon or around it." However, he said, "unfortunately it is not me who decides."

He said that he was "still preparing for these flights" but declined to go into details.

Plane Breaks Up In Flight; 4 Die

FOUNTAIN CITY, Ind. (AP)—Four persons were killed Sunday afternoon when a light private plane disintegrated in flight, dropping parts and bodies on two farms near this east-central Indiana city.

Venard Gross was fishing three-quarters of a mile southeast of his home here when he heard "a terrible noise in the clouds like a plane doing acrobatics." Gross said he looked up to see a small plane come out of the clouds.

"Suddenly a wing fell off," the fisherman reported. "Then, one by one, four bodies dropped from the craft."

Gross estimated the plane was about 1,000 feet high.

The dead were identified as Carl L. Dehmer Jr., 36, Wichita, Kan.; his wife, Virginia, 35; Richard H. Ivers, 35, Sapulpa, Okla., and his wife, Grace, 34.

Picket Pauling Present

Kennedys Entertain Scientists, Artists

WASHINGTON (AP)—Distinction usually is limited to about 100 persons, although the Kennedys last November had 155 at a White House function were guests of President and Mrs. Kennedy Sunday night at a dinner honoring Nobel Prize winners.

One of the winners and one of the guests figured in the news in advance of the unique affair and stirred some political echoes.

Dr. Linus Pauling, a Nobel winner in chemistry and a militant foe of nuclear testing, picketed the White House Saturday as part of a group protesting U.S. resumption of aerial nuclear test shots.

Sources here could not recall anyone else who had qualified for such a picket—yesterday, guest-of-honor.

When the 175-person guest list was made public Saturday, another name quickly caught reporters' eyes. It was that of J. Robert Oppenheimer, head of the Institute of Advanced Studies at Princeton, N.J.

A brilliant physicist, Oppenheimer played an important part in developing the atomic bomb. But in 1954, the Atomic Energy Commission voted 4-1 to withdraw Oppenheimer's clearance for access to top-secret information.

The AEC did not question Oppenheimer's loyalty or accuse him of any conduct prejudicial to national security. But it held that his associations were such that it was felt there was some risk that he might, perhaps inadvertently, disclose secret information.

Sunday night's state dinner was the largest function of its kind yet held in the White House—at least in modern times. Such af-

Rusk Allays German Fears

LONDON (AP)—U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk asserted Sunday the United States is not committed to recognizing the Communist East German regime.

Arriving at London Airport for three days of talks in the British capital, Rusk was questioned by newsmen about his Washington talks with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin. Asked whether a point had now been reached where the United States was obliged to recognize East Germany, Rusk replied emphatically: "No."

"The obstacles (to a Berlin settlement) at the present time are the failure to obtain from the Soviet Union recognition, as far as their proposals are concerned, of the West's vital interests in Berlin including the presence of Western forces and completely free access to Berlin," he added.

Rusk said if these obstacles were surmounted a number of other vital questions might fall into place.

The secretary of state is here for a ministerial meeting of the Central Treaty Organization—CENTO.

Congress Reaches Halfway Mark This Week With Kennedy Program Lagging

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congress reaches a score of messages and reports in which he made at least 35 specific recommendations involving major legislation.

Following its usual pattern, Congress has been slow to act on the administration proposals, shunting aside most of them until the post-Easter session and piling up a mountain of work for the summer months.

Actually, only five of the 35 major Kennedy recommendations have cleared Congress. They dealt with manpower retraining; the national debt ceiling; enlargement of the Peace Corps; development of educational television facilities; and tightening of enforcement provisions of the Union Welfare and Pension Fund Reporting Act.

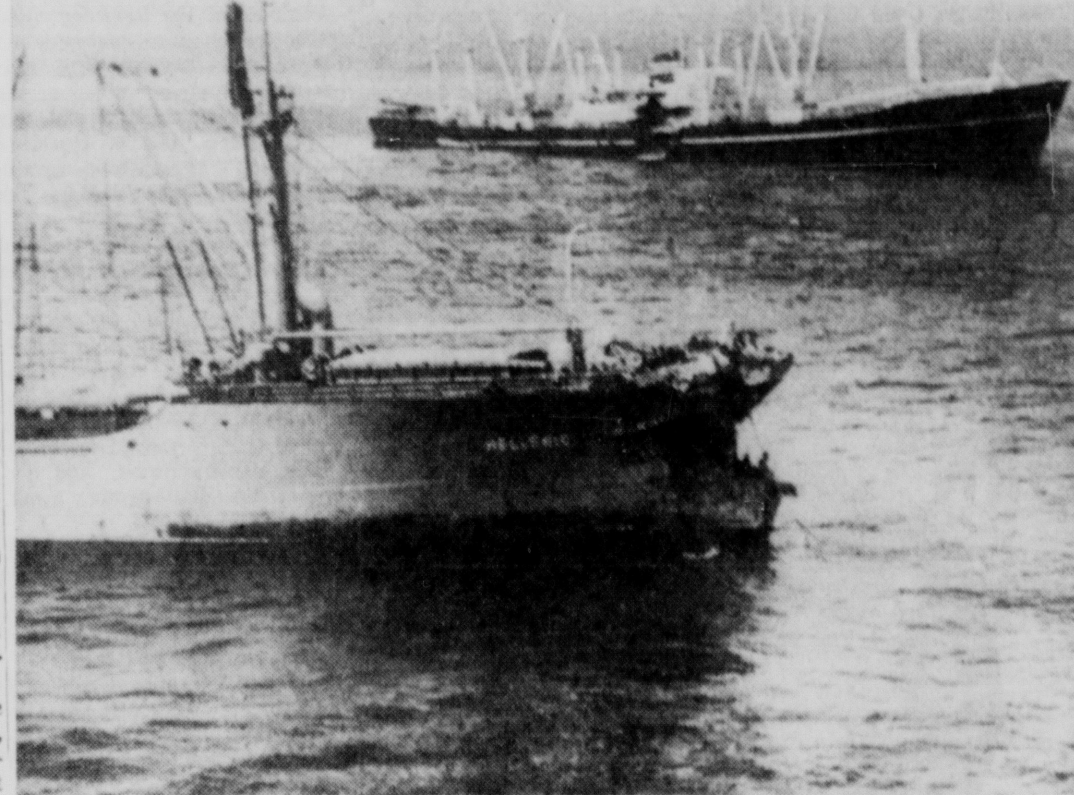

Three other Kennedy proposals have won House approval but have not been acted on by the Senate. Involved in them are authority for a $2-billion loan to the International Monetary Fund, increased postal rates, and overhauling of the federal tax structure.

The Senate has passed Kennedy-backed bills providing for federal aid for secondary schools and authorizing the purchase of United Nations bonds. The House Rules Committee has shelved, probably for the rest of the year, the school bill. The House Foreign Affairs Committee has not yet started hearings on the bond purchase measure.

Both the Senate and the House have passed bills providing financial aid for higher education but have been unable to compromise their broad differences because of failure of the House Rules Committee to approve appointment of a compromise Senate-House committee.

Another major Kennedy proposal calling for creation of a Cabinet-rank department of urban affairs was killed outright by the House.

Laos Gets Thai Aid Pledge; U.S. Halt Denounced

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—Royal government leaders returned from Thailand Sunday with pledges of help to ease the economic impact of what a Lao official called "the brutal suspension" of U.S. aid.

At the same time, the official Acting Foreign Minister Sisouk Na Champassak, expressed hope Washington will understand the royal government's position and reverse U.S. policy.

The United States suspended its $3-million monthly economic aid to Laos in February, when Premier Prince Boun Oum refused to enter into a coalition regime with neutralist Prince Souvanna Phouma as premier.

The United States insisted this was the only hope for ending the rebellion of the Communist-dominated Pathet Lao guerrillas. The royal government feared the Communists eventually would take over from Souvanna.

Sisouk told reporters the Thai government, as a first step, has given Laos a grant of 1,000 tons of rice—about enough to supply this administrative capital for 10 days—and will provide other products such as cement.

Sisouk declined to give details but said, "We have drawn a plan of our needs and Thai officials promised to consider them within the limits of Thailand's capabilities."

Asked if the U.S. policy of suspending economic assistance was raised during discussions with Thai officials in Bangkok, Sisouk replied: "The Thai government doesn't understand this brutal suspension."

A reporter said W. Averell Harriman, U.S. assistant secretary of state for Far East affairs, had declared after his visit to Laos in March that no Southeast Asian government would consider helping Boun Oum's government.

Sisouk said Harriman made the statement "after failure of his mission here." Harriman had come here to try to get the rival factions to negotiate again on a neutral coalition regime.

Cambodia-S. Viet Nam Break Appears Near

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Cambodia and South Viet Nam appeared on the brink of diplomatic rupture Sunday as Cambodia official disclaimed all responsibility for a raid on a Vietnamese border village in which 54 were killed.

Viet Nam has formally charged Cambodia with responsibility for the April 20 raid, claiming it was premeditated and led by Cambodian government guards. The village, Vinh Lac, is less than a mile from the Cambodian border, 120 miles west of Saigon.

In a note prepared for delivery to Vietnamese authorities, Cambodia called the Vietnamese charges slander.

Russ Bring Down Satellite Safely

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet spaceship Cosmos IV completed three days of orbiting around the earth and was brought down safely Sunday on order from the ground, Tass reported.

The ship, orbited Thursday, was presumed to be unmanned.

During its three-day flight, Cosmos IV covered more than a million and a quarter miles, Tass said. Its equipment functioned successfully during the whole flight, Tass added.

The Soviet Cosmos series—others were launched March 16, April 6 and April 24—is devoted to exploration of radiation and radiation and other hazards that might face man in extended space travel.

Eight Missing After 40-Foot Boat Capsizes

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Eight persons were feared lost Sunday when a 40-foot boat capsized in Galveston Bay.

One man, reported in deep shock, was rescued. Sheriff's dispatcher Bob Bagman quoted a telephone caller as saying:

"I saw the boat overturn and eight bodies float away from it. We managed to grab one person." The sheriff's department said four adults and five children were aboard. It did not know to whom the boat belonged nor the names of the missing persons.

Rescue units from Galveston, Houston and other cities in the coastal area rushed to the scene. Galveston officials sent up a plane to circle the bay area.

One report said the overturned boat was found near Eagle Point, just off San Leon.

The Galveston area was crowded with weekend visitors who journeyed to the island city for its Splash Day celebration, officially opening the beach season.

FAA Plans Survey Of Air Control Mistake Factors

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Federal Aviation Agency said Sunday it will start on May 9 a two-month survey of factors with looking into instances of errors in the nation's air traffic control system that can lead to mistakes. Alerted to the need for action after the constant danger of aircraft collisions resulting from such mistakes, the agency is selecting a nine-man team of air safety experts to make the unusual study.

It will complement studies already made on controllers, Charles W. Carmody, chief of FAA's Operations Evaluation Division, has been placed in charge of the new program.

Carmody is selecting five traffic controllers, to be detached from their stations in various parts of the United States for the 60-day period of special duty, and three persons from the headquarters during periods of stress.

U.S., British Leaders End Conferences

Soviet Blamed For Failure To Agree On Atom Test Ban

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy and British Prime Minister Macmillan held the door ajar Sunday for a summit meeting with Soviet Premier Khrushchev but blamed the Soviets for failure to agree on a nuclear test ban.

Their agreed positions were made clear in a communique which climaxed a weekend of talks. A social White House luncheon concluded the fifth session between the two leaders, then Macmillan flew on to Canada.

Informed sources said that the European Common Market occupied more time in the discussions than any other issue. But no final decisions were reached as the leaders exchanged ideas on how to deal with this growing economic force, which Macmillan wants to join and with which Kennedy wants to cooperate closely.

The communique said also that Kennedy and Macmillan reaffirmed their willingness to consider meetings of heads of government whenever there is an indication that such meetings would serve the interests of peace and understanding.

Kennedy told newsmen the two-day session on outstanding international issues had been "a most useful and productive visit."

Macmillan, noting this was his fifth get-together with Kennedy since the President took office, saw these frequent, informal talks as marking a new era in U.S.-British relationship as partners to "maintain order and freedom" in the world.

"I hope this system will continue because I am sure it has great value for the future of the world," Macmillan said.

The communique pledged America and Britain to continue to work toward progress toward disarmament, including the ending of nuclear tests which the United States resumed this week. However, Kennedy and Macmillan "reaffirmed their regret that the Soviet government has not been willing to join in an effective treaty which would end nuclear testing."

In the joint communique, issued as Kennedy and Macmillan sat down to a White House lunch concluding their weekend gathering, the two chiefs made plain they are holding the way open for meeting Khrushchev.

It was understood, however, that neither Kennedy nor Macmillan has any immediate initiative in mind to seek a personal talk with the Soviet leader.

The communique said Kennedy and Macmillan "took note of the opinion recently expressed by Chairman Khrushchev." This presumably referred to Khrushchev's recent statement that summit meetings should not be undertaken unless there is some advance evidence that such conferences "should not prove sterile."

This reference apparently was to remarks Khrushchev made in an interview with Gardner Cowles, president and editor of Look magazine and president of the Des Moines Register and Tribune.

The communique said Secretary of State Dean Rusk's current talks on Berlin with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin had been reported to Macmillan by Kennedy and the two government heads "agreed on the importance of maintaining these and other contacts between East and West."

Kennedy and Macmillan, the communique continued, "reaffirmed their willingness to consider meetings of heads of government whenever there is an indication that such meetings would serve the interests of peace and understanding."

Congress Reaches Halfway Mark This Week With Kennedy Program Lagging

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congress hits the halfway mark this week in its planned eight-month session, with the Kennedy legislative program in bad shape on a percentage basis.

The House returns Monday from a 10-day Easter holiday with the "no business" sign up for the early part of the week and a communications satellite measure scheduled for the latter part. The Senate's major occupation will be continuation of a talkathon around a civil rights measure dealing with literacy tests for voters.

Since Congress convened its election-year session last January 10, the House has been in session 56 days and the Senate 58. Its leaders hope for final adjournment by the end of August but already there is talk of a mid-summer recess and a short fall session.

Since the opening day, President Kennedy has sent to Con-

Titov Anxious To Swap Notes With Col. Glenn

NEW YORK (UPI) — Soviet cosmonaut Gherman Titov arrived here by plane Sunday for an 8-day visit to the United States during which he will attend a Washington space symposium and swap notes on space travel with U.S. astronaut John Glenn.

Titov, 27, was accompanied by his attractive brunette wife, Tamara, 24, and a party of Russian scientists. It is Titov's first visit to the United States.

The Russian spaceman has been invited to visit Cape Canaveral during his unofficial stay to view U.S. preparations for the next manned earth orbital flight, but there was no immediate indication whether he would accept the invitation.

During his stay, the cosmonaut, who orbited the earth 17 times last August, will tour New York City for two days, taking in the view from the top of the Empire State Building and making a visit to the United Nations at the invitation of Acting Secretary General Thant.

The Russian spaceman, who flew to the United States in a special Soviet Ilyushin 18 flight, will go to Washington Tuesday for the international space symposium.

The cosmonaut, relaxed and speaking freely with newsmen through an interpreter, referred to Glenn's triple orbit of the earth last Feb. 20.

"I am glad that American technology has advanced," he said, "with the final proof being the flight of Glenn."

In a reference to the race between the United States and Russia to put a man on the moon, Titov said he would "like to go into space again, either to the moon or around it." However, he said, "Unfortunately it is not me who decides."

He said that he was "still preparing for these flights" but declined to go into details.

The communique pledged America and Britain to continue to work toward progress toward disarmament, including the ending of nuclear tests which the United States resumed this week. However, Kennedy and Macmillan "reaffirmed their regret that the Soviet government has not been willing to join in an effective treaty which would end nuclear testing."

In the joint communique, issued as Kennedy and Macmillan sat down to a White House lunch concluding their weekend gathering, the two chiefs made plain they are holding the way open for meeting Khrushchev.

It was understood, however, that neither Kennedy nor Macmillan has any immediate initiative in mind to seek a personal talk with the Soviet leader.

The communique said Kennedy and Macmillan "took note of the opinion recently expressed by Chairman Khrushchev." This presumably referred to Khrushchev's recent statement that summit meetings should not be undertaken unless there is some advance evidence that such conferences "should not prove sterile."

This reference apparently was to remarks Khrushchev made in an interview with Gardner Cowles, president and editor of Look magazine and president of the Des Moines Register and Tribune.

The communique said Secretary of State Dean Rusk's current talks on Berlin with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin had been reported to Macmillan by Kennedy and the two government heads "agreed on the importance of maintaining these and other contacts between East and West."

Kennedy and Macmillan, the communique continued, "reaffirmed their willingness to consider meetings of heads of government whenever there is an indication that such meetings would serve the interests of peace and understanding."

Georgia To Appeal Unit Vote Plan KO

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—Georgia Democrats faced more uncertainty Sunday after the federal court voided the state General Assembly's new county unit vote statute. Although it appeared unlikely, the possibility existed that the vote James O. Sanders, the court said in its unanimous opinion: "We do not strike the county unit system as such. We do strike it in its present form."

And the state along with the Democratic party served notice of appeal of the three-judge injunction against use of the 347-unit vote plan in the Sept. 12 primary election.

The court threw out the day-old unit system statute Saturday, but held that a unit system, in itself, was legal if it didn't run afoul of constitutional rights.

Under the unit system, as applied since reconstruction, counties are assigned a number of unit votes to be cast in a primary for the candidate receiving the most popular votes. The law enacted Friday by the legislature altered the 45-year-old law by providing that a candidate would have to get a majority of both the popular and unit votes to win the first primary. However, a runoff would be decided by the units.

The court, comprised of Judges Elbert Tuttle, Griffin Bell and Frank Hooper, held that the system as enacted was weighted too heavily in favor of smaller counties.

NEW YORK (AP) — Lt. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, Maryland's adjutant general, was honored by the Adjutants General Association of the United States Sunday night as the nation's most distinguished citizen-soldier.

William Preston Lane Jr. of Hagerstown, Md., former Maryland governor who served with Reckord during World War I, traced the adjutant general's military career in a speech prepared for delivery at a testimonial dinner.

Anti-Castro Demonstrators Under Arrest

HAVANA (AP) — Several persons were reported under arrest Sunday for staging the first antigovernment demonstration in Havana since last fall.

Hardly had the last echo of Saturday night's short demonstration died than the second shakeup within a month was reported in the leadership of the Integrated Revolutionary Organization, Cuba's only political body.

Wilfredo Castro—no relative of Prime Minister Fidel Castro—was fired as the organization's secretary-general in one of Cuba's most populous districts. The Communist newspaper Hoy said Sunday he was accused of making false arrests and using the revolution for his personal benefit. He may face trial.

Accounts of the Saturday night demonstration were confused, but this was the story witnesses told: A crowd had assembled at the intersection of Galiano and San Rafael streets, one of Havana's busiest, for a pep rally in connection with this week's May Day celebration.

About 50 demonstrators mingled with the crowd, which included Saturday night shoppers as well as Cubans assembled for the rally. At what seemed to be a signal, the demonstrators unfolded banners with inscriptions calling for the release of political prisoners.

Police quickly moved in, broke up the demonstration, and led some of the demonstrators away.

Dad Runs Over, Kills Baby Son

By The Associated Press
Five persons met accidental death during the weekend, increasing Maryland's highway fatality toll for the year to 145. On the corresponding date a year ago, the toll stood at 111.

In the fashionable Washington suburb of Chevy Chase, a father ran over his young son Sunday in the family driveway.

The victim was 2½-year-old Michael Gordon Kelly, son of Robert Arnold Kelly of Chevy Chase.

Police said Kelly had driven home from church and stopped his car outside his driveway gate, which was closed. His three children opened the gate and clambered aboard the front of the car, Michael, clinging to the right front fender.

Kelly drove slowly down the driveway for about 100 feet, then turned into a parking area. As he was turning, police said, Michael apparently fell and was run over by a front wheel. He died a short time later in Suburban Hospital.

Two of the victims were struck Saturday night. Another died of injuries suffered in an April 9 accident.

Butler Declares Red Goal Must Be Erased

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. John Marshall Butler, R-Md., said Sunday the next disarmament conference must concern itself not with the destroying of arms but with eliminating the Communist goal of seeking to control the world which is the cause of the arms race.

Butler, in a statement, said President Kennedy's order to resume nuclear testing was necessary to preserve the security of the nation and the free world.

In the face of Soviet refusal to agree to effective, on-site inspections and controls and with knowledge of formidable strides made by the Soviets in their tests last year, the President had no real choice but to give the go-ahead order, he said.

"Those who have argued and demonstrated against the resumption of nuclear testing will one day perceive the wisdom of the decision, which can be criticized, perhaps, because it was so late in coming," he said.

The largest town in area is Kiruna, Sweden, the boundaries of which have, for fiscal avoidance purposes, been extended to embrace an area of 5,458 square miles.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman Newton N. Minow of the Federal Communications Commission predicted Sunday the first experiment with live international television via space satellites may come this summer.

Minow said on a TV program taped with Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., for Pennsylvania stations that this possibility calls for a great deal of thought about what the United States will be broadcasting to other nations.

Deploing the bad impression he said had been left by the showing of canned American Westerns in foreign countries, Minow said he hopes U.S. broadcasters will take advantage of "a great chance to show people around the world what kind of people we are and what our freedoms are, what our traditions are, instead of giving them nothing but blood and thunder."

Minow said commission studies indicate that the best and most financially successful TV stations are the ones that do the most public service. He said the situation is somewhat different on radio, where one-third of the country's stations are losing money.

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Most girls who write to you want to know how to keep the boys "in line." Well, if my boy friend doesn't get OUT of line pretty soon — at least enough to give me a goodnight kiss I may have to stop seeing him.

I've been dating L. B. for seven months. We are both in our middle 20's and college graduates. We share the same cultural interests, the same religion, and we enjoy each other's company tremendously. Everything is perfect except he has not even held my hand.

For the first several weeks I was pleased at his restraint. Then something happened which made me uneasy. In church last Sunday L. B. was holding both prayer books. I reached over to get my book and my hand accidentally touched his. He must have thought I was trying to hold hands with him. He jumped six inches. The prayer books went kerplow on the floor and everyone turned to look at us.

What's with this guy anyhow? Help me, please.—CANT GET A PULSE

DEAR CANT: It's L. B. who needs help, not you. A man in his middle 20's who dates a girl for seven months and jumps at the touch of her hand is no red-hot candidate for marriage.

If the relationship hasn't produced ample voltage to spark a goodnight kiss after all these months of courtship, tell him goodbye — and point him in the direction of a psychiatrist.

DEAR ANN: I'm a 17-year-old high school boy. My parents are in good shape financially. They both work and we have no big money worries. I've had odd jobs after school and on Saturdays since I was 13. I have painted, scrubbed, mowed, shoveled, sat—almost anything you can think of. The money I earned bought my clothes, school supplies, gifts, and I always saved something. I was never given an allowance.

Now I make $56 a week at a 20-hour job. My aunt and uncle have invited me on a three-week trip with them in June. My share of the expenses will be $50. My dad says if I'm away from my job for three weeks I must figure in the loss of salary which will be another $168. He says $218 is too much to spend on a vacation.

I want to go very badly. All this talk about money is making me nervous. Should I go?—DAN

DEAR DAN: You sound like a hard-working, responsible guy who deserves a vacation. Go and have a good time.

Money for money's sake means nothing. If you can't enjoy the fruits of your labor, life is no fun at all, son.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My daughter-in-law has redecorated her home at considerable expense. In a formal living room she has placed framed pictures of her family on end tables and other pieces of furniture. These pictures seem out of place and detract from the appearance of an otherwise lovely room.

Since I'm only a mother-in-law I'm not supposed to have any opinions — or at least so I gather from reading your column for several years. Or have I gotten the wrong impression?—BALTIMORE LADY

DEAR LADY BALTIMORE: Of course a mother-in-law can have opinions. But if she's wise she will keep them to herself unless she's asked.

Confidential to UNDER SUSPICION: What do you mean by "third degree" and "lie-history"? If you want to know if I think a 16-year-old's parents should know where she is, with whom, and when she will be home, the answer is yes.

Are you tempted to smoke because the crowd does? If so, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Teenage Smoking," enclosing with your request 10c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Needed! A Bill Of Rights For Room-Mates

Whether they are sisters sharing a bedroom in the family home or a couple of career-girls who have teamed up to split the expenses of an apartment, they must be able to keep one precious prerogative all to themselves. And that's their right to some privacy!

If there were ever to be a Bill of Rights for room-mates (and it's not a bad idea!), respect for privacy should top the list of do's and don'ts. Each girl should have a time — and a place — to call her own, where she can feel secure against interruptions.

If the "place" is contrived of nothing more than a screen to shut off her side of the room whenever the mood for peace and quiet seizes her, it's enough. Nothing more elaborate is necessary when room-mates are in sympathetic agreement from the start.

Shared quarters can be a real blessing to lonely working girls on limited budgets. It's a practical arrangement, financially speaking . . . and it's a comfortable, convenient and companionable one, as well.

But it can be a mixed blessing at times, as some of my Powers models have confessed to me. Companionship is one thing. Enforced companionship is another. Difficulties arise when the roomies haven't been frank about their common need to preserve their individualities. The time to draw up a Bill of Rights is right from the start, when they first decide to pool their resources. But, even when misunderstanding has occurred, it's never too late for sensible girls to start over.

So, if you're considering a Bill of Rights, talk it over with your room-mate. She'll probably be delighted to cooperate in working it out . . . and making it work. You'll both find a great measure of relief in the freedom that a few simple rules permits.

Remembering the experiences related by my models, I can contribute two more suggestions for your Bill: Keep borrowing to an absolute minimum (and never, never do it without asking in advance). And restrain yourself from encroaching on your room-mate's friendships; don't assume you are inseparable just because your address is the same.

Now, the two of you can take it from here!

Problems concerning personal neatness are frequently bones of contention between roommates. They shouldn't be . . . if the girls consider grooming a necessary aid to a rewarding career. My pamphlet, "Your Steps to a Successful Career," is one thing that room-mates can share generously to mutual advantage.

Just send 10c and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to John Robert Powers, c/o this newspaper, and you'll have your copy within two weeks.

Building Permits
Total $166,496

Building permits valued at $166,496 were issued by the City of Cumberland during April.

Included were permits for 16 dwellings with a total value of $103,200.

The April permits pushed the value for the first four months of 1962 to $796,452.

In volume—30 permits were issued—it was the most active building month since 1955.

The commonest given name in Britain has been John since 1340. Before that William was the commonest.

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Most girls who write to you want to know how to keep the boys "in line." Well, if my boy friend doesn't get OUT of line pretty soon — at least enough to give me a goodnight kiss I may have to stop seeing him.

I've been dating L. B. for seven months. We are both in our mid-20's and college graduates. We share the same cultural interests, the same religion, and we enjoy each other's company tremendously. Everything is perfect except he has not even held my hand.

For the first several weeks I was pleased at his restraint. Then something happened which made me uneasy. In church last Sunday L. B. was holding both prayer books. I reached over to get my book and my hand accidentally touched his. He must have thought I was trying to hold hands with him. He jumped six inches. The prayer books went kerplow on the floor and everyone turned to look at us.

What's with this guy anyhow? Help me, please.—CAN'T GET A PULSE

DEAR ANN: It's L. B. who needs help, not you. A man in his middle 20's who dates a girl for seven months and jumps at the touch of her hand is no red-hot candidate for marriage.

If the relationship hasn't produced ample voltage to spark a goodnight kiss after all these months of courtship, tell him goodbye — and point him in the direction of a psychiatrist.

DEAR ANN: I'm a 17-year-old high school boy. My parents are in good shape financially. They both work and we have no big money worries. I've had odd jobs after school and on Saturdays since I was 13. I have painted, scrubbed, mowed, shoveled, sat—almost anything you can think of. The money I earned bought my clothes, school supplies, gifts, and I always saved something. I was never given an allowance.

Now I make $56 a week at a 20-hour job. My aunt and uncle have invited me on a three-week trip with them in June. My share of the expenses will be $30. My dad says if I'm away from my job for three weeks I must figure in the loss of salary which will be another $168. He says $218 is too much to spend on a vacation.

I want to go very badly. All this talk about money is making me nervous. Should I go?—DAN

DEAR DAN: You sound like a hard-working, responsible guy who deserves a vacation. Go and have a good time.

Money for money's sake means nothing. If you can't enjoy the fruits of your labor, life is no fun at all, son.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My daughter-in-law has redecorated her home at considerable expense. In a formal living room she has placed framed pictures of her family on end tables and other pieces of furniture. These pictures seem out of place and detract from the appearance of an otherwise lovely room.

Since I'm only a mother-in-law I'm not supposed to have any opinions — or at least so I gather from reading your column for several years. Or have I gotten the wrong impression?—BALTIMORE LADY

DEAR LADY BALTIMORE: Of course a mother-in-law can have opinions. But if she's wise she will keep them to herself unless she's asked.

Confidential to UNDER SUSPICION: What do you mean by "third degree" and "life-history"? If you want to know if I think a 16-year-old's parents should know where she is, with whom, and when she will be home, the answer is yes.

Are you tempted to smoke because the crowd does? If so, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Teenage Smoking," enclosing with your request 10c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Needed! A Bill Of Rights For Room-Mates

Whether they are sisters sharing a bedroom in the family home or a couple of career-girls who have teamed up to split the expenses of an apartment, they must be able to keep one precious prerogative all to themselves. And that's their right to some privacy!

If there were ever to be a Bill of Rights for room-mates (and it's not a bad idea!), respect for privacy should top the list of do's and don'ts. Each girl should have a time — and a place — to call her own, where she can feel secure against interruptions.

If the "place" is contrived of nothing more than a screen to shut off her side of the room whenever the mood for peace and quiet seizes her, it's enough. Nothing more elaborate is necessary when room-mates are in sympathetic agreement from the start.

Shared quarters can be a real blessing to lonely working girls on limited budgets. It's a practical arrangement, financially speaking . . . and it's a comfortable, convenient and companionable one, as well.

But it can be a mixed blessing at times, as some of my Powers

Building Permits
Total $166,496

Building permits valued at $166,496 were issued by the City of Cumberland during April. Included were permits for 16 dwellings with a total value of $103,200.

The April permits pushed the value for the first four months of 1962 to $796,452.

In volume—30 permits were issued—it was the most active building month since 1955.

The commonest given name in Britain has been John since 1340. Before that William was the commonest.

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q. 1—As South you hold:

AK753 ♠ 1083 ♣ 1064 ♣ K

The bidding has proceeded:

West North East South

1 ♠ Double 1 ♠ 1 ♠

Pass 1NT Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A—Three no trump. Partner has shown the equivalent of an opening no trump bid. Your nine points plus the two tens give you enough to take further pressure off him.

Q. 2—As South you hold:

AKQ63 ♠ 952 ♣ A6 ♠ 6542

The bidding has proceeded:

West North East South

Pass 1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠

Pass 1NT Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A—Pass. Another bid by you can only serve to land your side in a game contract which will have very dubious prospects. Ten point holdings are border line hands where a second, constructive bid should be taken only when a good fit is present or partner has not yet marked himself with a minimum opening.

Q. 3—As South you hold:

AJ84 ♠ A43 ♠ 98 ♠ AJ105

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass

1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass

What do you bid now?

A—Two hearts. A bid of two no trump would be grossly improper in this situation. Partner has bid two suits requesting a preference and you have a clear-cut choice in favor of hearts. If no trump is the correct contract, partner will be in position to make the suggestion himself.

Q. 4—As South you hold:

AKQ5 ♠ K8 ♠ 109542 ♠ AK83

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

Pass Pass 1 ♠ 1 ♠

1NT Pass 2 ♠ Pass

What do you bid now?

A—Two no trump. Partner appears to have slam aspirations in spite of our modest bidding. However, too much of our values are concentrated in spades and a serious duplication of values appears to be present. Therefore, another mild call is indicated to slow partner down.

Q. 5—As South you hold:

AJ6 ♠ 95 ♠ AK743 ♠ AJ9

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass

What do you bid now?

A—There is no satisfactory bid available at this point and we recommend the slightly fancy call of one spade. You are two points short of a two no trump rebid, but you will be in a position to make that bid the next round over a call of one no trump, two diamonds, two hearts or two spades by partner. The risk involved is not great for, if partner persists in raising spades, that could easily prove to be the best contract.

Q. 6—As South you hold:

AKQ1064 ♠ 863 ♠ K74 ♠ J8

The bidding has proceeded:

East South West North

1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass

Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A—Two spades. The opponents have no special edge in high cards since both East and West have limited their hands. Competition is therefore indicated and appears to be reasonably safe as partner is probably short in hearts.

Q. 7—Both vulnerable and as South you hold:

AQ97543 ♠ 8 ♠ J109 ♠ A74

The bidding has proceeded:

West North East South

1 ♠ 1 ♠ 2 ♠ ?

What do you bid?

A—Pass. Two spades would not be a sound speculation. Partner's failure to make a take-out double makes it unlikely that he possesses any good spade fit and you are not prepared for him to persist in hearts.

Q. 8—As South you hold:

AJ1097 ♠ QJ5 ♠ AAK542

The bidding has proceeded:

West North East South

Pass Pass Pass 1 ♠

Pass 1NT Pass 2 ♠

Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A—Three spades. The fact that partner was willing to try again after you rebid just two clubs should induce you to carry on despite his previous negative activity. A rebid of your excellent spade holding may now enable partner to offer a raise with a doubleton honor or three small.

Homemakers Plan Mosaic Tile Project

MT. SAVAGE — The Mt. Savage Homemakers met in St. George's parish hall to make mosaic tile plaques under the supervision of Mrs. Margaret Haus. Ten members attended the workshop held prior to the business meeting.

The meeting was called to order by Mrs. Maude Holsinger, president. The prayer and collect were led by Mrs. Sara Carter. Mrs. Margaret Haus read the history of the hymn "O Sons and Daughters Let Us Sing," a Roman Catholic hymn.

Two more lines of Maryland My Maryland were studied and a review of lines previously learned were sung. The answer to the roll call was a favorite beauty tip.

Birthday greetings were sung to Mrs. Hazel Swaiger, Mrs. Sara Carter and Mrs. Gertrude Beeman. The club donated a $10 award to be presented to the best home economic student at the Mt. Savage High graduation.

The club is working on mosaic tiles as its project for the Cumberland Fair. Mrs. DeMona Yutzy, Mrs. Mary Deffenbaugh and Mrs. Doris Crowe volunteered to help Mrs. Margaret Haus make the plaques.

The president announced homemakers have been invited to visit the Welsh greenhouse and 12 members stated they were interested in going.

Tentative plans have been made to hold three summer card parties the last Wednesday of June, July and August. The special prize was won by Mrs. Hazel Swaiger and was donated by Mrs. Thomas Adams.

The next meeting will be held May 16, when Mrs. DeMona Yutzy will exhibit a vacation wardrobe and give a talk on various materials used. Each member is to bring and model a hat she has made. Prizes will be awarded for the prettiest, funniest and the most original.

Robert L. Fisher Files For Office

KEYSER — Robert L. Fisher, 176 D Street, a serviceman with the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company here, has filed his certificate of candidacy as councilman in the primary election May 22.

Two council seats will be vacant this year as the terms of Paul D. Peters and Lester H. Oates expire June 30. R. L. Murray was elected last year.

City Clerk C. F. Rice Sr. said the deadline for filing is noon May 12.

Mothers Club To Plan Picnic

FROSTBURG — The Hill Street Kindergarten Mothers Club will meet Wednesday at 7:45 p. m. in the home of Mrs. Virginia Thomas, Middlethian Road. Miss Margaret Poole of the Allegany County League for Crippled Children, Cumberland, will speak.

Members will make plans for the annual picnic in June.

Is Fined $100

PIEDMONT — Elmer J. Fazenbaker, 62, was fined $100 and sentenced to 60 days in the county jail at a hearing Saturday before Justice of the Peace Eugene Spiker on a charge of being intoxicated.

Fazenbaker was fined $50 and costs on each of two assault charges that resulted in his arrest Friday night.

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q. 1—As South you hold:

AK753 ♥ J1083 ♦ QK1064 ♣ K

The bidding has proceeded:

West North East South

1♦ Double 1♥ 1♠

Pass 1NT Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A—Three no trump. Partner has shown the equivalent of an opening no trump bid. Your nine points plus the two tens give you enough to take further pressure off him.

Q. 2—As South you hold:

AKQ63 ♥ 952 ♦ A6 ♠ 542

The bidding has proceeded:

West North East South

Pass 1♠ Pass 1♠

Pass 1NT Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A—Pass. Another bid by you can only serve to land your side in a game contract which will have very dubious prospects. Ten point holdings are border line hands where a second constructive bid should be taken only when a good fit is present or partner has not yet marked himself with a minimum opening.

Q. 3—As South you hold:

AKJ84 ♥ A43 ♦ 98 ♠ AJ105

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1♠ Pass 1♥ Pass

1♠ Pass 2♥ Pass

1NT Pass 2♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A—Two hearts. A bid of two no trump would be grossly improper in this situation. Partner has bid two suits requesting a preference and you have a clear-cut choice in favor of hearts. If no trump is the correct contract, partner will be in position to make the suggestion himself.

Q. 4—As South you hold:

AKQ5 ♥ K8 ♦ 109542 ♠ K83

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

Pass Pass 1♠ 1♠

1NT Pass 2♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A—Two no trump. Partner appears to have slim aspirations in spite of our modest bidding. However, too much of our values are concentrated in spades and a serious duplication of values appears to be present. Therefore, another mild call is indicated to slow partner down.

Homemakers Plan Mosaic Tile Project

MT. SAVAGE — The Mt. Savage Homemakers met in St. George's parish hall to make mosaic tile plaques under the supervision of Mrs. Margaret Haus. Ten members attended the workshop held prior to the business meeting.

The meeting was called to order by Mrs. Maude Holsinger, president. The prayer and collect were led by Mrs. Sara Carter, Mrs. Margaret Haus read the history of the hymn "O Sons and Daughters Let Us Sing," a Roman Catholic hymn.

Two more lines of Maryland My Maryland were studied and a review of lines previously learned were sung. The answer to the roll call was a favorite beauty tip.

Birthday greetings were sung to Mrs. Hazel Swauger, Mrs. Sara Carter and Mrs. Gertrude Beeman. The club donated a $10 award to be presented to the best home economic student at the Mt. Savage High graduation.

The club is working on mosaic tiles as its project for the Cumberland Fair. Mrs. DeMona Yutzky, Mrs. Mary Deffenbaugh and Mrs. Doris Crowe volunteered to help Mrs. Margaret Haus make the plaques.

The president announced homemakers have been invited to visit the Welsh greenhouse and 12 members stated they were interested in going.

Tentative plans have been made to hold three summer card parties the last Wednesday of June, July and August. The special prize was won by Mrs. Hazel Swauger and was donated by Mrs. Thomas Adams.

The next meeting will be held May 16, when Mrs. DeMona Yutzky will exhibit a vacation wardrobe and give a talk on various materials used. Each member is to bring and model a hat she has made. Prizes will be awarded for the prettiest, funniest and the most original.

Brown's father (1861-1935) also was publisher of the Randolph Enterprise for 25 years and a newspaper for 54 years. He was elected to the West Virginia Journalism Hall of Fame in 1941.

Brown, 51, is over six feet in height, powerfully built and direct, even outspoken, in manner. He is cordial and engaging and appears to pull no punches when questioned.

Brown is a member of the vestry of Grace Episcopal Church in Elkins, is senior warden, and a licensed lay reader—qualified to fill in for the minister in his absence. He is married and is the father of two girls.

He served as commander of the West Virginia Department of the American Legion in 1959-60 and has long been active in Elkins and Randolph County civic affairs.

Brown worked his way through West Virginia University, graduating with an A. B. degree in 1932 and obtained his Bachelor of Law degree in 1934.

"I worked as a law librarian during the school year to pay my expenses, and worked during the summers as a railway section hand, stone crusher and once with the State Road Commission."

Was Marine Flyer

In his early 30s in 1943, Brown enlisted in the Marines as a private. However, he had a private pilot's license and was sent to themselves.

Must Prisons Be Prisons?

Once a person is in jail, confined by walls and governed by basic disciplinary rules, the only sensible way to treat him is to lead him into better mental and moral health. Imprisonment has failed in one of its major functions when a prisoner is returned because he has committed a new crime.

The error that Westerners make is that they believe that the Communists will destroy themselves by fighting each other, as, for instance, that Mao will go to war with Khrushchev. Suppose they do quarrel with each other: they will join each other under attack as we always join Great Britain and France when they are attacked. Those who put their trust in Mao destroying Khrushchev are whistling in the wind; they will join forces against us, as Tito signed up with Khrushchev. Both sides have ceremonial pictures of Marx and Lenin in their offices.

Must Prisons Be Prisons?

Must prison life be, in many ways, the "direct antithesis" of life outside. For example, must a prison look like a prison? Leading penologists ask questions such as these and answer them in the negative.

Under the traditional idea of what a prison is for, safekeeping and punishment have been primary considerations. They must continue to be that. The security of a prison's walls or fences is what makes it a place where a dangerous person can be kept apart from society. When he is put there, however, the question arises: Will he be a safe person to release at the end of his term?

The question overrides in importance any concern except to what extent a convict's time in jail will reform him and be a deterrent to other outlaws.

More and more thinking in penal circles is less about revenge meted out to a prisoner, and more about the day when he will be turned loose at the prison door. Penologists point to the fact that more than 40 per cent of released prisoners are sent back to prisons later because of new offenses. This is a high degree of failure in the employment of imprisonment as a device to protect society.

Once a person is in jail, confined by walls and governed by basic disciplinary rules, the only sensible way to treat him is to lead him into better mental and moral health. Imprisonment has failed in one of its major functions when a prisoner is returned because he has committed a new crime.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky
Ungrateful Tito

It must be accepted from now on that Tito, the dictator of Yugoslavia, who has taken more than a billion of our dollars, is an ungrateful cur, as they used to say in the dime novels. He is a plain bum who takes and bites the hand that gives him the hand-out.

He is now at peace with Soviet Russia, having to all intents and purposes entered the Soviet Universal State. At the next Communist Party Congress in the Kremlin, it is to be expected that Tito, wearing all his medals, decorated like a masquerader, will stand on the right of Khrushchev, an enemy of the United States. He will take Chou En-lai's place, now that the Chinese Reds have become Albanians.

Those who continue to believe that the Russians are not making political progress do not quite grasp what Khrushchev's objectives are and how he affects other Soviet nations.

Tito is and has always been a Communist. It has paid him to adopt the attitude of being a National Communist; that is, one who believes in the general principles of Marxism-Leninism but who also holds that this system can be adapted to each country's history and traditions and that it is not necessary to establish a Soviet Universal State.

Holding this view, he formed a separate alliance with Nehru and Nasser and established the doctrine of neutralism which resulted in the Bandung Conference (1955) and which today influences the position of most Asiatic and African countries. Tito, of course, was not present at Bandung but his influence was there.

Assuming that half a loaf is better than none at all, it was State Department policy during the Eisenhower Administration and it is policy now, but less so, to regard the neutral countries as worthy of our economic and military assistance. As a result of his neutralistic gambit, Tito got more than a billion dollars from us.

But he has now come out into the open. He is not only a Communist but he is an ally of Khrushchev. It would not at all be astonishing if Tito uses his new relationship to go after Albania, a little Communist country that lies adjacent to his but which is presently more allied to Red China than to Soviet Russia.

This must be understood about the Communist Revolution: it presents several facades. One is the fundamental, ideological Marxist-Leninist position on all phases of life and thought. This possesses the quality or religious ritualism and obedience. This side of Communist life is the same with all Communists and there can be no distinction among them.

However, as this movement operates, it breaks into four groups, the Orthodox Marxists who are represented by the Chinese-Albanian group; the Right deviationists who used to be represented by Tito; the Orthodox Leninists represented by Khrushchev; the Stalinists of whom Molotov is the leader. The Stalinists and the Chinese-Albanian group tend to coalesce. Tito has now joined Khrushchev.

The inner politics of the Soviet Universal State are in a constant state of flux. For instance, such satellites as Fidel Castro and Cheddi Jagan cannot be readily identified. They will go as the wind blows. Such neutrals as Nehru and Nasser are frightened by the developments which must engulf them as they are helpless.

It is not sound to exaggerate the differences among these various groups and personalities: they are all opposed to democracy and capitalism. They all believe that the world — the entire world — must be conquered by Marxism-Leninism; that the mystical, monotheistic religions have run their course, much as Christianity reduced the magnitude of Judaism and totally eliminated Manichaeism. They are uncompromising in their assumptions concerning dialectical materialism. They only differ as to the best mechanism for winning the battle and who is to be the chief.

The error that Westerners make is that they believe that the Communists will destroy themselves by fighting each other, as, for instance, that Mao will go to war with Khrushchev. Suppose they do quarrel with each other; they will join each other under attack as we always join Great Britain and France when they are attacked. Those who put their trust in Mao destroying Khrushchev are whistling in the wind; they will join forces against us, as Tito signed up with Khrushchev. Both sides have ceremonial pictures of Marx and Lenin in their offices.

Our Contradictory Vietnam And Laos Policies

SAIGON, South Viet Nam. At the time of the full moon in March, the American watching radars in this country observed a night parachute drop in a wild area of the South Vietnamese highlands near Pleiku.

The planes employed appeared to be three Ilyushin transports of the slow type the Soviets have passed on to their satellites, with escort by the Yak propeller-driven fighters of the same hand-me-down sort. Monitoring stations furthermore heard the plane crews speaking both Chinese and Vietnamese.

The parachute drop, though small in scale, was a warning, as the first known episode of this type. It was also significant for two other reasons.

On the one hand, it underlined the increasing Chinese participation in the aggressive enterprises of the North Vietnamese Communists. This is also evident in Laos. On the other hand, this parachute drop, obviously occasioned by some sort of special emergency, also pointed up the larger problem of concealed invasion.

For a great many months, men and supplies have been moving from North Viet Nam into South Viet Nam by the slower overland route through Laos. The movement of supplies, by truck or airplane to the Laotian town of Tchepone and then by coolie across the border, is not massive as yet. The human movement is variously estimated to be 500 to 1,000 men per month — which may not seem very important until you add up the total for the past 24 months.

It would seem to be a conservative estimate that at least 12,000 North Vietnamese have entered South Vietnam in the last two years. Of these, between one-half and two-thirds have fanned out into the provinces, to serve as leaders in the unending guerrilla war. The rest, amounting to at least 4,000 men, have moved into the Annamite chain — the almost trackless spine of mountains which divides the highland plateau on the Laos border from the fertile seaside strip of South Viet Nam. In their refuges in the Annamite chain, the men of this latter group are almost certainly being used to form the skeletons of regular regiments of guerrillas with light but powerful weapons.

The units being formed in the Annamite chain may soon constitute a very serious threat, especially to the highland plateau provinces. The seizure of Kontum, for instance, would give the Communists both a bridgehead on this side of the border for their Ho

By Joseph Alsop

Chih Minh trail through Laos, and a chance to proclaim the formation of a "people's government" on the soil of South Viet Nam. But the real point of note about this concealed invasion of South Viet Nam is that what has happened to date is downright trifling compared to what may come later on.

Suppose, for instance, that the U.S. policy in Laos produces the result that seems so sadly likely, the precise opposite of the "neutral" Laos that U.S. policy is designed to produce. Suppose that in this extremely un-neutral Laos the Communists can carry their supply road down from Tchepone to Saravane and Attopeu. Attopeu is only two days' march from Kontum and only four days' march from the Annamite chain.

A single coolie can carry 60 pounds on his back plus enough rice around his middle to sustain him for a 10-day round trip. After allowing for rest and replacement, a mere 500 coolies based on Attopeu could lay down a ton of supplies a day in the Annamite chain. That is more than enough for a North Vietnamese division.

Full Communist organization of the supply routes through Laos would therefore have two quite automatic consequences. First of all, even while coolie-power was still used exclusively, the shorter distances to be covered would allow a really major movement of supplies. Second, the supplies being available, the movement of men could also be greatly increased. This, one may be reasonably sure, is why the Communists continue to expect to win the war in South Viet Nam, despite the powerful intensification of the American effort.

In reality, however, this intensification of the American effort amounts to a commitment, final and irrevocable, not to permit a Communist victory here. Hence anyone who has studied the situation in both Laos and this country is obsessed by a comparison of risks.

The risk of a change of the present American policy in Laos may be considerable. But this risk is still far smaller than the risk of bombing Hanoi or doing the other things that may have to be done if the situation in South Viet Nam gets out of hand as a result of Communist success in Laos.

In sum, our Laos policy and our South Vietnamese policy appear to be flatly contradictory; and as the latter cannot be re-examined, the Laos policy clearly needs to be.

Huck Finn Wouldn't Recognize His Mississippi River Or Its Cities

By Drew Pearson

I see that wonderful spread of lights at two o'clock that still night. There wasn't a sound there, everybody was asleep."

Changes Noted

Well, things have changed along the Mississippi since Mark Twain wrote that shortly after the Civil War. They have changed; and again they haven't changed.

The rafts on which Abe Lincoln and Huck Finn drifted to New Orleans are gone now, and the packet boats which once carried mail, the passengers, the freight and the life-stream of the Mississippi Valley are as scarce as skeletons of the Neanderthal Man. They have been replaced by tankers Caltex Perth out of London and Olympic Light out of Monrovia, Liberia, and Pennsylvania Sun operated by Standard of California and Texaco, Esso-Standard Oil, and the Sun Oil Company, manned not with the hard-bitten rivermen from Arkansas and Missouri, as in Twain's day, but the crews from England, Norway and Panama.

They have also been replaced by stout, snub-nosed little tugboats which churn up the river, pushing a quarter of a mile of barges ahead of them—a labor-saving device whereby four men can do the work of 400; just as the ships from Liberia and London, owned by American corporations, save money by hiring foreign crews.

Other things about the Mississippi have changed too. Along the lower reaches are factories and refineries and bridges that would have made Huck Finn's jaw drop lower than the lights of St. Louis. He never would have believed the bauxite refineries of Alcoa and Kaiser with ships of raw bauxite coming in from Venezuela and the West Indies; and the giant oil refinery of Standard Oil of Louisiana which Jimmy Hoffa has been trying so hard to organize—so far without success. And standing out along the shore-line at Baton Rouge the biggest synthetic rubber plant in the world, built in wartime emergency to replace the rubber which the Japanese had cut off from the Malays.

Then there is the Huey Long Bridge, standing high over the lower Mississippi in a place where bridges were considered impractical and impossible only a few years ago. Huey swore he would build a bridge over which people would not have to pay toll, just as he swore he would put free textbooks in the schools. He did, and a monument with a light shining on it, day and night, stands outside the skyscraper state capital in Baton Rouge where he was killed. Wayward Ol' Miss

Most of this you can see from the Mississippi, only Mark Twain and Huck Finn wouldn't believe it were they to sail by on the Delta Queen today. Other things about the river, however, have not changed.

The Mother of Waters is still the most uncontrolled lady in the world. Her brown ample bosom, stretching two miles from shore to shore, can be generous at flood-stage, treacherous at ebb-stage. Steamboats come hurtling down her broad bosom in the spring as the snows melt in Minnesota; and go creeping gingerly up her narrow channels, picking their way through shifting sandbars in the summer when the water is low.

Today, the brown water laps through the trees along the shoreline as if the trees grew from the sea. In places the water licks at the sides of the levees as if ambitious to get to the top and flood what lies beyond. But the Guernsey and Brown Swiss cows grazing on the levee banks seem unworried; and so do the people who live in the farm houses whose rooftops can be seen just below the levee. Obviously these people live below the water line. Obviously the Mississippi is higher than the land through which she travels.

But life goes on — unperturbed — behind the levee. There was a time when the Mississippi shunted off through what is now called the Atchafalaya River and ended in Texas. It might do so again. Nobody can predict what this uncontrollable old gal will do. She's more flighty than Elizabeth Taylor but a better breadwinner for those who live on her.

If she should change her course again she would leave Baton Rouge and New Orleans just as high and dry as Eddie Fisher has been left by the fickle Liz.

The people downriver in Louisiana, however, are going to do their best to see that this doesn't happen, and they have the indefatigable Army Engineers on their side.

Meanwhile the Mississippi flows on, unhurried yet never lazy; perverse and obstinate when you try to buck her; gracious and yielding when you go her way; lonesome with only an unrooted tree trunk rippling her surface; busy with barges and oil tankers whistling for right of way.

On she flows — not nervous like the Potomac, not frantic like the Niagara, not stained with man's sins and foibles like the Hudson; a great, worldly-wise, wayward lady, sometimes confined, never controlled, flowing inexorably on to the sea. (Copyright 1962, By The Bell Syndicate)

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

His name is Joga. He's 20. He drives a taxi at the Ashoka Hotel, New Delhi, India. He is tall, extra polite, and wears white cotton trousers, a white short-sleeve shirt, and an orange turban with a peacock fan of orange on top. He has mahogany skin, eyes like big onyx pools, and a jet beard which curves down tight around his face.

He is a Sikh from the Punjab and he speaks English like a Briton. His smile is rich and free, but his dignity is unassailable. He will not speak unless he is addressed, and he ends all sentences with the words "you see?"

Like almost all the 390,000,000 people of his country, his religious faith is deep and insuperable.

The Hindus, and such partial dissenters as the Sikhs, Jains, and Arya-Samajists, all subscribe to the same credo: "God is one, all-pervading, almighty, eternal and the creator of the whole universe. He is without name and form. He is imagined as possessing human organs like ears, nose, etc. only in order to make it easy for the common people to concentrate their mind upon Him."

Joga and I shared the front seat of his taxi on short trips and long ones and, day by day, he came to understand that my curiosity about him and his life were serious matters to me. I was not laughing at him. One afternoon we saw a man lying on a sidewalk in Old Delhi. It was obvious that the man was dying. Pedestrians stepped over his body. No doctor came; no ambulance.

"It is not bad for him, you see," Joga said. "We wait for death with great patience. Death is the big victory, not the defeat. We wait for death because how else can one attain Nirvana (heaven)? This life is but a temporary trial. The little ones who are taken quickly by disease are the lucky ones. They go at once to eternal reward."

"We avoid death," I said. "We fight it with science, with penicillin, with prayer, diet, exercise, oxygen tents, adrenalin and other magical nostrums." Joga has a pearly smile. "Ah," he said "your faith is small. The Hindu must lead a blameless, selfless life if he is to attain Nirvana. If he doesn't, he is condemned to be reincarnated as a cow, a camel or some other thing. He must keep coming back here until he leads a life without stain. Then he goes to Nirvana."

I asked him about his personal life. Some pretty girls, in colorful saris, were waiting at a corner for a bus. "Do you go on dates?" I said. Joga laughed heartily. "No sir. Of course not. It is forbidden. My mother and father sit waiting in our village. When the time comes, they will tell me."

"Oh come on," I said. "A big fellow like you." He kept shaking his head no. "In my village," he said, "the mother and father of a girl will someday call upon my people. They will say that their daughter is of age, and they will ask to see the sons of the house. My brother and I will be summoned, you see. We will go home and stand in the room as our parents direct."

"The other people will look at us. They will select one. That one will be married to their daughter." "So you will start taking the girl out when you are picked?" I said. He laughed. "That too is forbidden. I will not see her—even though we were once children on the streets together—until the day of the wedding."

"We will be married and we will go off on a wedding trip to become acquainted." "Meanwhile, while you cannot meet girls here in New Delhi?" "No, no," he said. "There is no use meeting a young lady unless you desire her. If you do, then you must marry her. It is contrary to the wishes of our parents and both of us must tell our parents that we renounce them."

"Then they disinherit us. After that, our parents become the joke of their villages. The people point and laugh. The mother and father sorrow until death." "You believe this?" I said. Joga smiled. "There is no better way." "Suppose," I said, "you don't like the girl they pick for you?"

"This," he said seriously, "is not important. We are taught that love will grow in time. It begins with respect. Love comes later." "And," I said, "if you refuse to marry her?" "Then," he said "my parents must renounce me and disinherit me at once. I cannot share in the farm or their lives. Again, they become a village joke."

"Will you attain Nirvana, Joga?" I said. "I mean, this time?" He shrugged. "I worship God and I do as He disposes. I obey my parents in all things and await their command." Joga is quite a boy.

We had a discussion about juvenile delinquency, and he could not understand the phrase. He thought I was very funny. Now I want to know something Is Joga Sikh?

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

STEEL PRICE CHECK — Both Washington and the business community are busy examining the implications behind the steel price gyrations. In the weeks and months ahead both sides will be looking for any sign that can be construed as breaking the stability pattern that has now been set.

Organized labor is no mere bystander in this situation. In fact, at Washington headquarters, some union officials are having sober thoughts about the whole thing.

They fear that their turn will come when it comes time for them to negotiate new wage contracts — that the administration will be just as tough and insistent as they were with steel that their wage increase demands be held to moderate level.

With the kind of price stability already demonstrated by President Kennedy is expected to stand much firmer against any hikes in upcoming wage contract negotiations.

Meantime, the administration is looking for a way to demonstrate that it is not on an anti-business binge. Top government officials fully realize that the record of the Kennedy administration will be written on the basis of national prosperity and it, no less than business itself, cannot afford the luxury of an all-out economic war.

So, if Washington guessing is correct, the rest of this year will witness a gradual fading of the steel price crisis and a gradual return to the economic stalemate that characterized the pre-steel negotiation period.

The outlook is for a return to the creeping price rises that have been occurring in recent years, but no sharp new round of inflation as was initially threatened when steel announced its short-lived price hike.

Test May Help Eliminate Fatal Uterine Cancer

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

helpful in eliminating fatal uterine cancer. This disease was the commonest cause of death from cancer in women 25 years ago. But the mortality rate has dropped 50 per cent since 1937 and it could go down to zero.

The test is a study of the cells that are shed normally from living tissues. A malignant tumor, for example, in the wall of the cervix or the body of the uterus sheds tumor cells into the pelvic secretions.

It is a simple and painless procedure for the physician to take a sample of the secretions during a routine checkup. This material is sent to the laboratory for a microscopic study and, within a day or two, the report is available.

The important aspect of the test is that the cells can reveal early cancer or even precancerous conditions, which are curable. The Pap test is positive long before the malignancy can be felt. In other words, it is possible to make the diagnosis so early that uterine cancer could be virtually eliminated as a killer.

The American Cancer society is encouraging women to go to a physician for an annual checkup. This will take considerable education because 40 per cent of the adult female population does not know the test exists. Others know but have done nothing about it.

April is cancer detection month but any month is a good time for a checkup. Have yours and persuade others to do so. It may save lives.

ECZEMA FROM MILK

S. H. writes: If a young child develops eczema when she drinks cow's milk, will she outgrow this sensitivity in time?

REPLY

Many children outgrow this type of allergy but there is no guarantee that she will not develop hives, asthma, or hay fever in years to come. The allergic person tends to keep his sensitivities but the form of the reaction may change.

I assume the child you inquire about no longer drinks cow's milk.

EXERCISE WON'T PREVENT HERNIA

R. C. writes: Can hernia be prevented by doing certain types of exercises to tone the abdominal muscles?

REPLY

No. It is not the muscles but the fibrous tissue that gives way when a hernia develops. In most instances, there is an inherent weakness of the tissues in the groin and it is only a matter of time when the area gives way and the bulge appears. The victim usually blames the work he was doing rather than himself.

INHALING SMOKE

J. M. writes: Is it more harmful to inhale cigars or cigarettes?

REPLY

Take your choice — one is as bad as the other. Most cigar smokers don't inhale and for this reason they cough less.

UPPER INTESTINAL TRACT

R. K. writes: What is meant by the upper g. i. tract?

REPLY

The esophagus, stomach, and the first few feet of the small intestine.

VISION AND SUNFLOWERS

E. C. writes: Will sunflower seeds help weak eyes?

REPLY

No—not even in Kansas.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Arnold Palmer Finishes Strong To Capture Texas Open With 273

Final 67 Wins Title For Third Straight Time

Four Tie For 2nd; Palmer Birdies 3 Of Last 4 Holes

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — Defending champion Arnold Palmer came through with one of his typically dynamic finishes Sunday, firing a four under par 67 for an unprecedented third straight victory in the Texas Open golf tournament.

Palmer, who went into Sunday's round trailing Joe Campbell of Pendleton, Ind., by two strokes, made a powerful recovery on the back nine to post birdies on Nos. 15, 17 and 18.

Palmer laid his tee shot on the 18th hole only 18 inches from the cup to thrill a packed gallery. Gene Littler had led most of the back nine.

Palmer, playing out of Miami, Fla., finished with a 273 and won $4,300, bringing his winnings this year to $41,306.

Campbell came in 1-under par at 274 in a four-way tie with Littler of Rancho Bernardo, Calif., Mason Rudolph of Clarksville, Tenn., and Doug Sanders of Ojai, Calif.

Alone at 276 was Dave Marr of Sun City, Ariz., who shot a one-under par 70.

Burke, Hill Tied

Jackie Burke of Kiamasha Lake, N.Y., and Dave Hill of Denver posted 277's. Burke shot a 4-under-par 67 and Hill tied for low score of the day with a 6.

Littler, playing in a trio with Marr and Campbell, was with 3 strokes up going into the 15th hole but took a bogey 6 on that hole and fell prey to Palmer's strong finish.

Palmer's 170-yard seven-iron shot off the tee to the 18th hole was easily the most dramatic of the tournament. The arching shot landed almost dead a foot and a half from the cup and most of the gasping, packed gallery realized the 32-year-old Pennsylvanian had done it again.

Put Pressure On Littler

The Masters champion dropped his putt for the birdie that put all the pressure on Littler. Littler managed a par on the 18th hole, but he needed a birdie to catch Palmer.

This was Palmer's fourth tournament victory this year, adding to victories in the Masters, Palm Springs and Phoenix opens.

Palmer's $41,306 winnings to date put him better than halfway ahead of his all-time money-winning mark of more than $75,000 in 1960.

Carroll Boggs Testimonial Dinner Is Set For Tonight

CCC Manager-Golf Pro To Be Honored; 300 Will Attend

Carroll Boggs, who has served longer than any professional golfer at the Cumberland Country Club, will be honored at a testimonial dinner today at 6:30 p.m. at the club.

Boggs is now manager as well as pro at the CCC and approximately 300 persons will gather tonight to honor him.

With the exception of a hitch with the Marines, Carroll has been associated with the Cumberland Country Club since he was 10 years old when he caddied there and since 1939 he has served as pro at the Christie Road club. Twenty-three years ago when he succeeded Eddie Morgan as pro here, Boggs was only 21, the youngest pro ever to hold the post at the CCC. Nine others had held the job from 1920 through 1938.

Among Boggs' assistants here who became pros at other clubs were Max Elbin, Don Saylor, Dick James and the late Ralph Leasure.

Carroll spent 2 1/2 years as pro at the Marine base, Parris Island, S.C., and also held jobs as winter

West Virginia Freshmen Play Potomac State

Rams Host Bobcats, Eagles Seek Sweep

West Virginia University's freshmen baseball team will play Potomac State College today at 3 p.m. at Keyser while Frostburg State Teachers College engages Coach Dick Bowers' Shepherd College Rams at Shepherdstown, W. Va.

The Mountaineer yearlings will be opening a two-game series with the Catamounts who whipped the Morgantown tossers by scores of 17-1 and 6-0 last season.

Potomac State moved within one game of the 500 mark by copping a doubleheader from Baltimore Junior College Saturday at Keyser by scores of 6-5 and 5-4. The double victory gave the Catamounts a 5-6 record for the campaign. Dombroski and "Hank" Cleary were the winning pitchers.

Coach Harold Cordts' Bobcats will be engaging in their eighth game of the campaign today when they play at Shepherd College.

Frostburg State has won four of its last five starts, is 5-2 for the season and has copped five of six games on the road. Shepherd, now 3-3, did not play Frostburg last season.

Port Ashby High School and Capon Bridge windup their season today at Capon Bridge. The Eagles of Coach Quentin Sayers hold a 4-1 decision over the Hampshire countians and are now 2-4. Capon Bridge is winless in five games to date.

Orioles Rip Athletics, 8-3

Score 6 In Seventh; Gentile Hits Pair

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The Baltimore Orioles exploded for six runs in the seventh inning—three of them coming on Jim Gentile's second home run of the day—to defeat the Kansas City Athletics Sunday, 8-3.

The Orioles went into the inning trailing 2-3 but pinch-hitter Russ Snyder tied it up with a home run and Johnny Temple and Whitey Herzog were issued bases on balls, setting the stage for Gentile's game-winning blow—a 400-foot shot off the right-center field fence.

Baltimore's first two runs came on solo homers by starting pitcher Milt Pappas in the fifth inning and Gentile's in the sixth. Baltimore ahr hbi

Bucs Beat Dodgers Twice To Move Into First Spot

Al McBean Blanks L.A., 1-0, After Friend Wins, 6-1

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Alvin McBean's 1-0 shutout in the nightcap combined with Bob Friend's 6-1 victory in the first game over the Los Angeles Dodgers, Sunday moved the Pittsburgh Pirates back into first place in the National League.

In the second game Dick Stuart's homer over the left-field bullpen provided McBean with his victory. In the first game, Howie Goss homered in the seventh inning to put the Pirates out front 2-1 and they collected 13 base hits to pull away.

For McBean, it was his third victory without defeat, while Friend now has a 4-1 record this season. McBean had never beaten the Dodgers before and it was his first complete game in five starts over two seasons.

Coach Jerry Calhoun's Beall High School thinclads will go after their fifth straight win of the season Thursday afternoon when they compete in the annual Potomac Valley Conference track and field meet at Frostburg.

Beall made it four in a row Saturday by defeating Allegany's varsity trackmen in the Mountain City by the score of 83-69.

Five stadium records were topped during the afternoon. The new marks were set by Jeff Norris, Allegany, in the mile run (4:43.8); Kenny Davis, Allegany, in the low hurdles (2.02 seconds) and in the high hurdles (15.1 seconds); Beall's quartet of Hesselbaugh, Delaney, Thomas and Goebl (1:45.6) in the 880 relay, and Bruce Shirey, of Beall (10 feet, 10 inches) in the pole vault.

Norris and Davis, of the Campers, were the meet's only double winners. The former won the half mile run in addition to the mile event.

Fort Hill scored only one point in the Bellaire (Ohio) Relays Saturday and finished in 18th place among the 40 teams competing.

Roosevelt High of Dayton, Ohio, won the meet with 48 points. Cleveland East was runner-up with 30 1/2 points.

Games Saturday, May 5
Frostburg at Grantsville
Barreilville at Lonaconing
Flintstone at Mt. Savage
Hyndman is idle.

Right-hander Bobby Raines hurled one-hit ball for six innings yesterday, leaving in the seventh when his arm tightened, as the Barreilville Old Exports opened their Pen Mar baseball League campaign with a 7-4 triumph over the Mt. Savage Old Germans at Barreilville.

The loss was the second in a row for Manager Ken Johnson's Old Germans who lost on opening day last week to Grantsville, 8-3.

Raines was working on a 5-0 lead when he was forced to leave the game. Ronnie Neubiser and Ronnie Cage finished up for the winners allowing all of Mt. Savage's runs in the final three innings.

Losing pitcher Wayne Johnson obtained two hits for Mt. Savage while Fay Often's two-run double in the ninth was the only extra base blow for the losers.

Leroy Morris paced Barreilville's attack with three singles while Pooch Lewis belted a double and single, and Cage had two singles.

Frostburg's playoff champions scored their second straight win yesterday, a 14-5 romp over Flintstone at Frostburg.

Ronnie Diehl registered his initial mound victory for the Merchants although he needed help from Mike Kasnick in the eighth when Flintstone spoiled his shut-out effort with five runs. Russ Jones suffered his second setback for Flintstone's perennial cellar-dwellers.

Rice Paces Attack
Leading Frostburg's 16-hit attack against four Flintstone hurlers were Jim Rice with four singles and a two-bagger; Gene Zumpano with a double and triple; Gary Keedy with three singles and Robert Shaw and Dick Pitko who smacked home runs in a six-run outburst by the Merchants in the first inning.

Charley Boone belted a three-run triple in Flintstone's eighth-inning outburst while Bob Hook also connected for a three-bagger for the losers.

Hyndman's pennant winners have not been able to get untracked this season, dropping their second straight decision yesterday to Lonaconing, 8-5, on the latter's diamond.

Lonaconing's win knotted them with Frostburg for first place in the standings with 2-0 records.

Grover Fazendaker went the route for Coney, hurling an eight-hitter as he settled down after giving up four runs to the Merchants in the first two innings.

Lonaconing Snaps Tie
Leading the Lonaconing attack was Ike Love who belted two triples and a single. Ev Spiker chipped in with a three-bagger and a double while Cokey Robertson had a single and double for the winners.

Best for Hyndman was Vohn Lehman with a triple and single and Candy Lowery with a double and two singles. Lehman absorbed his second loss of the young season.

Coney snapped a 4-4 tie with three runs in the seventh. Cokey Robertson cracked a single and Spiker scored him with a booming triple. After Love walked, both Spiker and Love scored when Bobby Munden's high fly ball to center was dropped for an error. The scores:

Cumberland Club To Make Twilight Loop Debut Today

Cumberland makes its debut in the Twilight Baseball League today when it plays at Lonaconing at 5:30 p.m.

The locals drew a bye on opening day last Thursday.

Paul Stickley is player-manager of the Cumberland team whose personnel includes Ronnie Cage, Donnie and "Pooch" Lewis, Ed Parsons, Bobby Goss, Johnny Horwath, Ellsworth Lambert, Bob Muford, Jim Yaider and Ivan Abe.

Cumberland is scheduled to play its first home game Thursday with Gilmore providing the opposition. The game will be played at either Stitzer Field or Penn Avenue Field.

Other games scheduled for today are Zihlman at Franklin, Midland at Keyser and Westernport at Gilmore.

Barton, victorious over Franklin (8-5) last week is idle today. In other openers last week, Keyser downed Zihlman, 9-3, and Midland's Old Exports won over the Gilmore Old Germans, 10-4.

Indiana Rider Posts 'Double' In Hill Climb

Kyle Sets Pace, 800 See Events

Glen Kyle, of Goshen, Indiana, riding a Vincent, won two of the four events on the motorcycle hill-climbing program staged yesterday in the Eastman Road Hill by the Bi-State Sprockets Motorcycle Club. He also turned in the fastest time of the day—4.14 seconds.

Eight hundred persons saw the slant riders in action. There were numerous spills on the tricky hill but no injuries were reported. George Mosser of Altoona, Pa., was the referee.

The other were won by Clarence Sudan, of Easton, Pa., riding a Harley-Davidson, and Phil Franz, of Cleveland, aboard a Harley-Davidson.

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT FOR ALLEGANY COUNTY, MARYLAND

LORETTA RUTH BUTLER, 12E Jane Foster Village, Cumberland, Maryland vs. ALONZO OLIN BUTLER, Baltimore, Maryland

No. 20653 Equity

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

The object of this suit is to procure a decree of divorce a vinculo MATRIMONI for the Plaintiff, Loretta Ruth Butler, of Allegany County, Maryland, against her husband, Alonzo Olin Butler, whose last known address was Baltimore, Maryland.

The Bill of Complaint states that on the 15th day of November, 1948, the parties were married in Oakland, Garrett County, Maryland, and that on the 8th day of January, 1957, the said Alonzo Olin Butler deserted and abandoned the Plaintiff without just cause; that said separation and desertion has continued without interruption for more than eighteen months and is beyond any reasonable expectation of reconciliation.

The Complainant seeks custody of seven children born as a result of said marriage. It is thereupon this 27th day of April, 1962, Ordered by the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland, in Equity, that the Plaintiff cause a copy of this Order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Allegany County once each week for four successive weeks before the 27th day of May, 1962, giving notice to the said Alonzo Olin Butler of the object and substance of this Bill of Complaint and warning him to be and appear on or before the 29th day of May, 1962, to show cause, if any, why he should not be passed as prayed.

Boy Injured In Two-Car Crash Dies

One Vehicle Is Reported Stolen From Richmond

Samuel B. Gromer, 15, of Silver Spring, who was critically injured late Saturday afternoon in a two-vehicle collision on U. S. Route 40 a short distance west of Grantsville, died yesterday at 5:22 p. m. while being transferred from Meyersdale (Pa.) Community Hospital to Children's Hospital in Bethesda.

His father, 50-year-old Jonathan B. Gromer, who was transferred to a Washington hospital, was reported in "serious" condition last night with a fractured leg and arm, chest injuries and lacerations.

Also injured and reported in "fair" condition at Memorial Hospital here is John J. Clancey, 27, of Philadelphia, who sustained severe chest injuries and numerous lacerations of his body.

Car Was Stolen

Investigation by Maryland State Police revealed that the car being driven west on Route 40 by Clancey had been reported stolen from Richmond, Va.

Authorities said that Trooper R. B. Cave noticed Clancey driving through Grantsville at a high rate of speed and in a reckless manner.

The trooper gave chase and Clancey failed to negotiate a sharp left curve about three-quarters of a mile west of Grantsville.

Hit Head

The car ran off the shoulder of the highway, skidded back across the road and rammed head-on into the Gromer vehicle, traveling east. Both cars were demolished, Police said.

Tfc. Donald Wade is assisting Trooper Cave in the investigation of the fatal accident.

The victim was reported to have sustained a severe brain injury, a crushed chest and was unconscious.

He was pronounced dead on arrival at Washington County Hospital in Hagerstown, police said.

Firefighters Plan Course On Radiation

A five-week course on radiation will begin on Thursday at 7:30 p. m. under auspices of the Bowling Green Volunteer Fire Company.

Harry R. Thomas, instructor for the course, said fallout, radiation, shielding, etc., will be included in the radiological meter operator course.

Each session will last three hours, according to Mr. Thomas, who said movies will be shown and there will be discussion periods.

Fire Chief Allan Deffenbaugh, said volunteer firemen as well as residents of the Bowling Green-Potomac Park areas are welcome to attend.

The final session will be conducted by a federal employee versed in radiation and its aspects.

Chief Deffenbaugh said the course is part of the constant training program of the volunteers.

A basic course in fire fighting is being set up for September and will be under supervision of the Fire Service Extension of the University of Maryland.

Stern Joins Chemical Propulsion Division Of Hercules Powder

Harry Stern, who in 1952 formed the Allegany Instrument Company for the manufacture of test equipment, has joined the Chemical Propulsion Division of Hercules Powder Company as manager of test engineering.

He will provide consultation and assistance in the Chemical Propulsion plants in all phases of testing, test instrumentation and interpretation of data obtained by testing.

A native of Washington, D. C. he received his B.S. degree in physics in 1940 from the University of Maryland and did post-graduate work at George Washington University.

He joined Allegany Ballistics Laboratory in 1944 where he was supervisor of the instrumentation group until 1952.

Contested Offices:

Three Seek To Represent County In State Senate

This is the first in a series of articles on some of the most important offices that will be at stake in this year's elections.

Three residents of Allegany County — two Republicans and a Democrat — are seeking the right to represent this county as a state senator to the General Assembly of Maryland.

The Republicans, Robert B. Kimble and George R. Hughes Jr., will compete against others in the primary election May 15 for the right to represent their party against the Democrat, William Walsh, in the general election in November. Mr. Walsh is unopposed in the Democratic primary election.

The Requirements

There are relatively few basic requirements a person must meet in order to qualify for election as a state senator. These requirements are set by law in the Maryland Constitution and deal primarily with age and residency.

The age requirement states a candidate for senator must be at least 25 years old at the time of his election, while the residency clause provides a candidate must have been a citizen of Maryland three years prior to the election, the last year of which must have been spent in the county or legislative district he wants to represent.

The Job

Once elected for a four-year term, a senator must attend a 90-day session of the General Assembly in Annapolis in the even numbered years, and a 30-day session in the odd numbered years. Senators also are subject to attend any special session during the year which may be called by the governor.

As a member of the General Assembly, the senator has a part in passing such laws as are necessary for the welfare of the state. One principal measure which must be acted upon each year is the budget bill for the state government for the next fiscal year. The General Assembly, which constitutes the House of Delegates as well as the Senate, also has the power to pass public local laws for the counties and special taxing areas.

During these law-making sessions at Annapolis, only a portion of a senator's time is taken up at regular meetings of the General Assembly. The remainder of his time is generally consumed at committee meetings where action, either favorable or unfavorable, is taken on bills before they are brought up before a session of the Senate for action.

On bills which are of interest to a particular county, the senator who sponsors the bill and the senators of the two adjoining counties sit as a committee and either act favorably or unfavorably on the local measure.

Under the unwritten rule of procedure called "senatorial courtesy" the whole Senate usually votes on local legislation and local appointments in accordance with the wishes of the senator from that county. Actually a senator is a very powerful person as he can pass or defeat any local legislation, whereas in the House of Delegates this would take a majority of the delegation from any particular county.

All county appointments made by the governor, such as trial magistrates, school board members, liquor board members, must be confirmed by the Senate, as are the majority of the state-wide appointments.

Senators also have to handle hundreds of applications for notaries public from their respective counties and approve their issuance.

In between sessions, senators usually receive much correspondence and also must attend numerous meetings with local governmental officials and other groups in their county on matters pertaining to legislation.

A senator may propose and introduce bills or legislation on either local or state-wide measures. Usually about 500 bills are introduced in the Senate and over 1,000 in the House of Delegates in an average 90-day session, and it is a time consuming job to read and study these bills.

Local legislation or bills pertaining to a particular county can be passed only during the 90-day session (every two years). The 30-day sessions are restricted to budget and state-wide matters. Usually only about 25 per cent of all bills introduced are enacted into law.

The Salary

The salary for a senator is $1,800 a year. However, he also receives $20 a day for expenses for each day of the 90-day or 30-day sessions and the same amount for each day of any special sessions which may be called.

They also receive a stationery and stamp allowance and each senator from the 23 counties and the six legislative districts of Baltimore are provided with a secretary by the state.

A senator also is given a specified amount by law for mileage expense money for only one trip from his home county to Annapolis and return during each session. For a senator from Allegany County, the mileage amounts to $80, payable only once each session.

During the past session of the General Assembly, a bill was passed which would increase the salary of a senator from $1,800 to $3,000 annually. However, the voters of the state also will have to give their approval on the increase and will vote on the question in the November election. If the increase is approved by the voters, the salary hike will go into effect January 1963.

Senators are authorized to grant a number of scholarships to students in their counties to several schools, colleges and universities in the state. These scholarships range from full grants or partial scholarships to approximately 10 different institutions.

Since there are no specified requirements by law for the position of state senator, such as educational or business qualifications, voters must judge the candidates on their own merits and decide who will best serve the interests of the people of Allegany County.

Cancer Drive Returns Ahead Of Last Year

'Sunday Crusade' Termed Success

Officials of the Allegany County Chapter of the American Cancer Society said last night early returns from its annual "Sunday Crusade" were running well ahead of the totals for the same period last year.

Several hundred volunteers canvassed homes in the county yesterday in an effort to surpass the $13,661 which was collected last year on Crusade Sunday.

The drive leaders were optimistic last night as volunteers helped count the contributions which were turned in at the Times-News Building by the team captains. No official tabulation was made by the tellers last night, but a preliminary count indicated returns generally were above those of last year.

In cases where no one was home yesterday, the volunteers left small brown envelopes which residents may use to mail in their contributions. Persons who were not contacted yesterday and who wish to send in a contribution may mail it to Cancer Crusade, 128 Union Street, Cumberland, Md.

Last night's returns did not include those from a number of towns throughout the county and team captains are urged to make their reports to the chapter's headquarters as soon as possible.

Robert G. Garner is general chairman of the campaign this year and Mrs. Leslie J. Clark is chairman of the house-to-house canvass in Cumberland.

Other leaders of the drive include Mrs. Charles H. Langham, county chairman; Mr. and Mrs. William Goebel, Frostburg; Okey Michael, Westport; and Alphonsus Byrnes, Lonaconing.

Mrs. Lucile Roeder, president of the Allegany County Chapter, and Mrs. Jean Cioni, executive secretary of the unit, helped coordinate the returns last night at the Times-News offices.

Alcoholic Beverage License Deadline This Afternoon

Allegany County residents who applied for alcoholic beverage licenses are being reminded that 4 p. m. today is the deadline for picking up the new permits at the Court House.

A spokesman for the Board of Alcoholic Beverages License Commissioners of Allegany County said those who fail to pick up their license by 4 p. m. will not be able to sell alcoholic beverages the following day or until licenses are procured.

To Attend Meeting

Local 26, Rubber Workers Union, will send five delegates to a District I URWA convention which opens Wednesday in Buffalo, N. Y., according to James Stein, president.

Delegates to the three-day meeting will be Alva C. Lewis, Earl Johnson, Graydon S. Dunlap, Nick Cantone and Rachel Muir.

Ladies Auxiliary 659 of Local 1024, Carpenters Union, will hold a rummage sale starting tomorrow at 10 a. m. at 39 North Mechanic Street.

Mahoney Plans Push For More Defense Work

Campaign Tactics Are Hit By Finan

By The Associated Press

If he is elected governor, says George P. Mahoney, he will take advantage of what he described as close ties with the Kennedy Administration to "push for Maryland's share of national defense contracts."

In a statement Sunday, Mahoney said the administration of one of his major opponents for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, Gov. Tawes, has been one of "lost jobs, lost opportunities, lost schooling."

Mahoney's statement opened what promised to be another week of heated exchanges involving the principals in the Democratic race for governor. Only slightly more than two weeks remain before the primary May 15.

"Under the Tawes Administration," Mahoney said, "state government has minced timidly instead of taking bold, progressive strides. It has been frightened where it should have been fearless ... cowardly where it should have been courageous."

"While the Democratic Administration in Washington is carving out a national and world image of strength and sinew," Mahoney added, "Maryland's so-called Democratic Administration is content to just sit tight."

Finan Attacks

Mahoney was the subject of two major campaign speeches during the weekend—Atty. Gen. Thomas B. Finan attacking him and Judge Michael Paul Smith defending him against charges by Mayor J. Harold Grady of Baltimore.

Finan, seeking the attorney general's nomination on the ticket headed by Tawes, criticized Mahoney's campaign tactics and his alliance with James H. (Jack) Pollack, a Democratic leader in Baltimore.

Finan said the current primary campaign "has found Mahoney sinking to new depths."

"Using his old techniques of the big lie, the half truth, and the sneering innuendo, he is trying to take one issue—the savings and loan issue—and is cynically attempting to persuade the people ... that there is something in this issue which would lead them to vote for him."

"Now, as a lawyer," Finan continued, "I am interested in facts; and I know that the facts of the savings and loan situation in Maryland bear no resemblance whatsoever to the stories being peddled by Mahoney."

Finan, a native of Allegany County, said Mahoney "has shattered the lingering illusions of those few whom he might have fooled in the first few weeks of the campaign."

"The Mahoney maneuver to which I refer was his embrace on April 9 of the support of Baltimore boss Jack Pollack, the one man, above all others, who has worked tirelessly and endlessly to defeat savings and loan regulations," Finan declared.

Is Termed Phony

"I ask you," he continued, "how can a man cry out of one side of his mouth about the savings and loan scandal, and with the other side welcome the support of the one man in the whole state who is most closely identified with every effort that was made to keep the regulatory law off the books?"

"... The phony Mahoney campaign on the savings and loan issue has now come to an end. With the revelation of his cynical alliance with boss Pollack, there is nothing that he can now say about savings and loan that will not reek with falsehood and bad faith."

Smith denied Mayor Grady's charges that Mahoney made a deal for Pollack's support in the primary campaign. Grady made the charges during a television speech in behalf of Tawes.

Smith said the Pollack organization was not supporting Mahoney because of a deal, but because of the strength displayed by Mahoney in the 4th and 5th Baltimore election districts where Pollack is influential.

"Mr. Pollack is a practical, astute man of politics," Smith said. "Before Mr. Pollack made any decision personally as to where his support would go in this election, he polled approximately 3,000 voters."

Reference was to a meeting Pollack had called in a downtown Baltimore hotel ballroom, where his followers voted by "secret ballot" to endorse Mahoney instead of either Tawes or David Hume, another major Democratic hopeful.

Family Of Four Hurt In Crash

Four members of a Bronx, N. Y., family were hospitalized early yesterday morning with injuries sustained when the car in which they were traveling rammed into the rear of a tractor-trailer near Midway Restaurant on the Pennsylvania Turnpike.

Stephen Diguiseppe, 23, his wife, Carole, also 23, their daughter, Deanna, one, and a son, Joseph, 2½, were not injured seriously, according to attaches at Bedford County Memorial Hospital who said the boy was discharged later in the day.

The father was driving west at 2:50 p. m. when he ran into the rear of the tractor-trailer, said police.

Fire Chief Urges Citizens To Join In Trash Drive

Fire Chief Virgil Parker is urging all local residents to take advantage of the annual trash drive which opens here today.

He said all homes will be safer if combustible trash which has been accumulating in attics, cupboards, basements and storage areas is disposed of during the drive.

Chief Parker said many of the fires here have been caused by cigarettes or the misuse of matches but that "without the trash there would have been no fire."

He said special attention should be given to basements, where collections of papers, wood, paint, old paint brushes and oily rags can create special hazards.

In between sessions, senators usually receive much correspondence and also must attend numerous meetings with local governmental officials and other groups in their county on matters pertaining to legislation.

A senator may propose and introduce bills or legislation on either local or state-wide measures. Usually about 500 bills are introduced in the Senate and over 1,000 in the House of Delegates in an average 90-day session, and it is a time consuming job to read and study these bills.

Local legislation or bills pertaining to a particular county can be passed only during the 90-day session (every two years). The 30-day sessions are restricted to budget and state-wide matters. Usually only about 25 per cent of all bills introduced are enacted into law.

The Salary

The salary for a senator is $1,800 a year. However, he also receives $20 a day for expenses for each day of the 90-day or 30-day sessions and the same amount for each day of any special sessions which may be called.

They also receive a stationery and stamp allowance and each senator from the 23 counties and the six legislative districts of Baltimore are provided with a secretary by the state.

A senator also is given a specified amount by law for mileage expense money for only one trip from his home county to Annapolis and return during each session. For a senator from Allegany County, the mileage amounts to $80, payable only once each session.

During the past session of the General Assembly, a bill was passed which would increase the salary of a senator from $1,800 to $3,000 annually. However, the voters of the state also will have to give their approval on the increase and will vote on the question in the November election. If the increase is approved by the voters, the salary hike will go into effect January 1963.

Senators are authorized to grant a number of scholarships to students in their counties to several schools, colleges and universities in the state. These scholarships range from full grants or partial scholarships to approximately 10 different institutions.

Since there are no specified requirements by law for the position of state senator, such as educational or business qualifications, voters must judge the candidates on their own merits and decide who will best serve the interests of the people of Allegany County.

Pike Firemen To Meet

Baltimore Pike Volunteer Fire Company will meet tonight at 8:30 instead of 7:30 p. m. Donald Ware, president, asked that all members bring their badges to tonight's meeting.

Cancer Drive Returns Ahead Of Last Year

'Sunday Crusade' Termed Success

Officials of the Allegany County Chapter of the American Cancer Society said last night early returns from its annual "Sunday Crusade" were running well ahead of the totals for the same period last year.

Several hundred volunteers canvassed homes in the county yesterday in an effort to surpass the $13,661 which was collected last year on Crusade Sunday.

The drive leaders were optimistic last night as volunteers helped count the contributions which were turned in at the Times-News Building by the team captains. No official tabulation was made by the tellers last night, but a preliminary count indicated returns generally were above those of last year.

In cases where no one was home yesterday, the volunteers left small brown envelopes which residents may use to mail in their contributions. Persons who were not contacted yesterday and who wish to send in a contribution may mail it to Cancer Crusade, 128 Union Street, Cumberland, Md.

Last night's returns did not include those from a number of towns throughout the county and team captains are urged to make their reports to the chapter's headquarters as soon as possible.

Robert G. Garner is general chairman of the campaign this year and Mrs. Leslie J. Clark is chairman of the house-to-house canvass in Cumberland.

Other leaders of the drive include Mrs. Charles H. Langham, county chairman; Mr. and Mrs. William Goebel, Frostburg; Okey Michael, Westport; and Alphonsus Byrnes, Lonaconing.

Mrs. Lucile Roeder, president of the Allegany County Chapter, and Mrs. Jean Cioni, executive secretary of the unit, helped coordinate the returns last night at the Times-News offices.

Alcoholic Beverage License Deadline This Afternoon

Allegany County residents who applied for alcoholic beverage licenses are being reminded that 4 p. m. today is the deadline for picking up the new permits at the Court House.

A spokesman for the Board of Alcoholic Beverages License Commissioners of Allegany County said those who fail to pick up their license by 4 p. m. will not be able to sell alcoholic beverages the following day or until licenses are procured.

Rural Fallout Is Subject Of SCS Meeting

A training session in conjunction with radiological monitoring in rural America will begin tomorrow and conclude Thursday at the University of Maryland, said Martin M. Gordon, work unit conservationist of the Soil Conservation Service office here who plans to attend.

Also planning to sit in on the sessions are Stuart Delbrook, conservation aid of Allegany County and Cecil Kight, conservation aid of Garrett County who will be among 23 SCS personnel from throughout Maryland.

Mr. Gordon said the sessions are aimed at teaching SCS employees how to check soil on farms in reference to fallout; how fallout affects water and land and stored commodities; and when it is safe to allow livestock out from under cover.

The sessions are part of a nationwide program sponsored by the U. S. Department of Agriculture and its planned setup in the event of an emergency resulting from atomic war.

Various equipment which will be housed at stations throughout Maryland will be distributed at the training session, said Mr. Gordon.

Some seven counties learned more about the program during a session held last year.

Mahoney Plans Push For More Defense Work

Campaign Tactics Are Hit By Finan

By The Associated Press

If he is elected governor, says George P. Mahoney, he will take advantage of what he described as close ties with the Kennedy Administration to "push for Maryland's share of national defense contracts."

In a statement Sunday, Mahoney said the administration of one of his major opponents for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, Gov. Tawes, has been one of "lost jobs, lost opportunities, lost schooling."

Mahoney's statement opened what promised to be another week of heated exchanges involving the principals in the Democratic race for governor. Only slightly more than two weeks remains before the primary May 15.

"Under the Tawes Administration," Mahoney said, "state government has minced timidly instead of taking bold, progressive strides. It has been frightened where it should have been fearless ... cowardly where it should have been courageous."

"While the Democratic Administration in Washington is carving out a national and world image of strength and sinew," Mahoney added, "Maryland's so-called Democratic Administration is content to just sit tight."

Finan Attacks

Mahoney was the subject of two major campaign speeches during the weekend—Atty. Gen. Thomas B. Finan attacking him and Judge Michael Paul Smith defending him against charges by Mayor J. Harold Grady of Baltimore.

Finan, seeking the attorney general's nomination on the ticket headed by Tawes, criticized Mahoney's campaign tactics and his alliance with James H. (Jack) Pollack, a Democratic leader in Baltimore.

Finan said the current primary campaign "has found Mahoney sinking to new depths."

"Using his old techniques of the big lie, the half truth, and the sneering innuendo, he is trying to take one issue—the savings and loan issue—and is cynically attempting to persuade the people ... that there is something in this issue which would lead them to vote for him."

"Now, as a lawyer," Finan continued, "I am interested in facts; and I know that the facts of the savings and loan situation in Maryland bear no resemblance whatsoever to the stories being peddled by Mahoney."

Finan, a native of Allegany County, said Mahoney "has shattered the lingering illusions of those few whom he might have fooled in the first few weeks of the campaign."

"The Mahoney maneuver to which I refer was his embrace on April 9 of the support of Baltimore boss Jack Pollack, the one man, above all others, who has worked tirelessly and endlessly to defeat savings and loan regulations," Finan declared.

Is Termed Phony

"I ask you," he continued, "how can a man cry out of one side of his mouth about the savings and loan scandal, and with the other side welcome the support of the one man in the whole state who is most closely identified with every effort that was made to keep the regulatory law off the books?"

"... The phony Mahoney campaign on the savings and loan issue has now come to an end. With the revelation of his cynical alliance with boss Pollack, there is nothing that he can now say about savings and loan that will not reek with falsehood and bad faith."

Smith denied Mayor Grady's charges that Mahoney made a deal for Pollack's support in the primary campaign. Grady made the charges during a television speech in behalf of Tawes.

Smith said the Pollack organization was not supporting Mahoney because of a deal, but because of the strength displayed by Mahoney in the 4th and 5th Baltimore election districts where Pollack is influential.

"Mr. Pollack is a practical, astute man of politics," Smith said. "Before Mr. Pollack made any decision personally as to where his support would go in this election, he polled approximately 3,000 voters."

Reference was to a meeting Pollack had called in a downtown Baltimore hotel ballroom, where his followers voted by "secret ballot" to endorse Mahoney instead of either Tawes or David Hume, another major Democratic hopeful.

Family Of Four Hurt In Crash

Four members of a Bronx, N. Y., family were hospitalized early yesterday morning with injuries sustained when the car in which they were traveling rammed into the rear of a tractor-trailer near Midway Restaurant on the Pennsylvania Turnpike.

Stephen Diguseppi, 23, his wife, Carole, also 23, their daughter, Deanna, one, and a son, Joseph, 2½, were not injured seriously, according to attaches at Bedford County Memorial Hospital who said the boy was discharged later in the day.

The father was driving west at 2:50 p. m. when he ran into the rear of the tractor-trailer, said police.
